Life Insurance Policy Review: When, How and What To Look For

As a financial professional, you probably have spent a significant amount of time and energy building your client base. But how confident are you that each of your clients' life insurance needs continues to be met by their current coverage? One simple way to provide your clients with an ongoing measure of support (and potentially increase your sales in the process) is by conducting regular policy reviews.

Performing periodic life insurance reviews is a sound practice which ensures that your clients' life insurance portfolios continue to meet their evolving needs while keeping pace with ever-changing market conditions. At a minimum, reviews should be scheduled in three to five-year intervals to ensure coverages continue to meet client needs.

Many clients are increasingly risk-averse, and the protection and other benefits that life insurance provides are becoming increasingly important. For clients to receive the maximum benefits their policies can offer, coverage and performance should be reviewed regularly and kept up-to-date. Our convenient, step-by-step approach makes it easy for you to:

- 1. Recognize the changes in clients' lives and in the life insurance industry, which can trigger the need for a policy review.
- 2. Record existing coverage and conduct a comprehensive analysis.
- 3. Provide a report showing any need for additional coverage and/or policy changes to adapt to current circumstances.
- 4. Potentially save your clients money on premiums by updating policies to reflect positive health changes, new mortality tables, current tax laws, interest rates and more.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR:

- Assess whether the life insurance products which your client has chosen and the amount of insurance they provide, adequately meet their current needs.
- Examine the policy's ownership and beneficiary designations (including a review of any trust documents) to make sure that the policies are in sync with their purpose.
- Analyze changes in insurance company ratings/ structure, portfolio management and overall policy performance.
- Make recommendations to help improve policy efficiency.

A Policy Review Can Protect What's Important to Your Clients — Today

Depending on the policies your clients already own, there are many ways to adjust their coverage to match their current situation. Here are some of the most common developments that you should probe during regular meetings and be on alert for in conversation as they are likely to have some life insurance impact.

These developments may trigger insurance needs or policy adjustments:

<ul> <li>BUSINESS/CAREER</li> <li>Career change</li> <li>Business start-up</li> <li>Business ownership change</li> </ul>	HEALTH/AGING • Positive change in health • Term policies approaching conversion date expiration • A need for more living benefits
